VIEWPOINT

FMCG major Hindustan Unilever has said that it will remove the word, 'fair' from its popular skincare brand, 'Fair & Lovely', as part of a global rebranding exercise by its parent company, Unilever. While the move has come at a time when there are growing voices against racial stereotyping, the company insisted that its step has got nothing to do with the current anti-racism movements in the West, saying it has been working on the evolution of the ₹2,000-crore brand for many years. As part of the rebranding, the company will also be announcing the new name for the 'Fair & Lovely' Foundation, set up in 2003 to offer scholarships to women to help them pursue their education.

The company said its other skincare portfolio will also adopt a new holistic vision towards beauty that cares for everyone and celebrates all skin colours

PRESSURE WORKED

- In the past two weeks, at least three change.org petitions came up globally, asking Unilever to drop the cream from markets in Asia
- In recent years, campaigns, such as 'Dark is Beautiful' and #unfairandlovely have questioned Indian's obsession with fair skin
- Bollywood stars and popular beauty pageants have been criticised for promoting colourism

Now, 'Fair' is no longer 'lovely'

OTHERS FOLLOW

■ Several FMCG companies are concerned about their brands after 'Black Lives Matter' protests across the globe
 ■ Recently, the US healthcare giant Johnson & Johnson stopped the sale of its skin-whitening creams globally, including India. ■ Similarly, the French cosmetics giant L'Oréal has also decided to drop the words, 'white', 'fair' and 'light' from all its skin products

'Colourism' is perhaps the most visible form of racism in the subcontinent

REACTIONS GALORE

Though I am all for creative freedom, racism is not freedom. Dropping a word will not change the way we look at dark people. Think of what the West Indian cricketers feel when we 'endearingly' call them "kaalu". PRITISH NANDY, poet-writer

This wrong dream that only fair is lovely and beautiful, is a deep-rooted stigma, when the majority of the country is brown-skinned. It's a mammoth step from the brand; other brands should follow suit BIPASHA BASU, actor

It's a step in the right direction. When a leading company that has managed to make their brand synonymous to what is considered beautiful, decides to re-brand, re-strategise and remove the word fair from their brand, it is significant. It will generate the debate on colourism. NANDITA DAS, actor

We have a long way to go in breaking our conditioning of what constitutes beauty, but this is a small step in the right direction. What a beautiful beginning! #nomorefairandlovely #peoplepower ABHAY DEOL, actor

The BIG Q:

Can renaming a fairness cream stop colourism? Have you faced any discrimination because of your skin colour?

BOLLYWOOD RESUMES SHOOTING, STRICT VIRUS RULES BAN 'ELABORATE & EXTRAVAGANT' SCENES

Bollywood will resume film shoots immediately, industry representatives have said, but strict virus rules banning "elaborate or extravagant" scenes threaten to strip the world's biggest movie-making machine of its trademark dazzle. The decision by three major industry bodies end three-months-long hiatus that was imposed following a nationwide coronavirus lockdown in India in late March.

- Filmmakers will not be allowed to film wedding scenes or fight sequences that have long been Bollywood staples. ■ Furthermore, actors over the age of 65 are banned from being on set - a rule that would see some of India's most revered stars, such as 77-year-old Amitabh Bachchan, forced to stay home instead.
- Social distancing norms will put a stop to scenes showing actors kissing or embracing, spelling a return to the 1980s, when songs often cut to images of flowers brushing against each other, then a shorthand for romance.
- Producers will also be required to have a doctor, nurse and an ambulance on set. The 16-page set of guidelines, framed by the Producers Guild of India, also includes a request for actors to do their hair and makeup at home, and urges casting directors to locate real-life relatives for family sequences to limit interactions with strangers

Person educated in mind and not in morals is a menace to society

Juvenile delinquent behaviour is one of the most important issues we face as a nation in this new millennium. Despite the social awareness, juvenile delinquency is on the rise. This is because of improper parental care and witnesses of acts of violence on the television. There is no doubt that heavy exposure to televised violence is one of the causes of aggressive behaviour, crime and violence in society. Television violence affects youngsters of all ages, of both genders, at all economic levels, and all levels of intelligence. To overcome this we need to educate the most important assets of our nation that is our young enterprising citizens. If our citizens are healthy, patriotic, honest, and sincere, our nation will progress at a much faster pace. For this reason, it is very essential to have moral education in schools. To impart moral education to students, there can be many ways - telling stories, preaching, group discussions, Yoga, and Meditation. To be an effective teacher, combination of all these methods can be used. Disrespectfulness is another issue on the rise among the children these days. It is seen that children speak back in aggression to their parents as well as their teachers. Paying respect to the elders, showing politeness to the small kids, helping the needy etc is needed the most. A child must learn moral values in school, many of the schools teach the students to develop their character through books, moral stories. Value-based education inculcates a sense of cooperation and fellow-feeling among people. The need for value education is constantly increasing as we continue to witness increasing violent activities, behavioural disorder. Only value education would lead us to attain our ultimate goal of peace on earth.
